ABSTRACT

The special purpose of this list of reference books is to strengthen regional reference library collections. It does not attempt to cover the range of titles required for a research or special library. Reference books for a children's library are not included unless they have a specific use in the adult reference room. This revision of the 1963 edition contains 378 new titles or new editions, most of which bear imprints for the years 1964 through 1966 with partial coverage of 1967. The bibliography is classified according to the Dewey Classification. (Author/NH)

FOREWORD

Reference Books for a Regional Reference Collection; Revised Edition, 1967

The four years since publication of the original list of Reference Books for a Regional Reference Collection has been a rich period of book publishing activity. The large number of new editions and new works of reference which have appeared is our most tangible evidence of the widely heralded "information explosion." Most notable of the reference works recently issued are the New Catholic Encyclopedia, the long awaited Encyclopedia of Philosophy, and the Random House Dictionary. New supplements to Granger's Index to Poetry, the Short Story Index, and the Index to Full Length Plays have also appeared in time to be included in this revised list.

Julia Ruth Armstrong compiled the materials for the first edition of Reference Books for a Regional Reference Collection during 1962-63. Miss Armstrong drew on her professional experience in the Rochester Public Library, the Regional Library Service Center, Watertown, New York (now the North Country Library System), and the New York Public Library Donnell Reference Library. Since its printing in 1963, the bibliography's usefulness has been proven many times over.

In 1967, the need for updating became evident and Edward C. Nelson was selected to do it. Mr. Nelson has extensive reference experience with the New York Public Library Bronx Reference Center and Donnell Reference Library.

As much as possible, he has tried to stay within the framework of Miss Armstrong's original scheme. The reference format has been the objective, but where necessary, circulating type subject material has been added.

The final score is: 378 new titles or new editions, most of which bear imprints for the years 1964 through 1966 with partial coverage of 1967. This brings the total a little short of 1,400 entries. It is our hope that no glaring omissions have been made and that the bibliography will be of some help to reference librarians in building well-rounded collections.

INTRODUCTION TO FIRST EDITION OF REFERENCE BOOKS FOR A
REGIONAL REFERENCE COLLECTION
SEPTEMBER 1963

So many reference lists already exist that an explanation is required for the appearance of a new one. This list has come into being to serve a special purpose—the strengthening of regional reference library collections. In New York State the recent expansion of multi-county library systems has shown the need for greatly enlarged reference collections to take care of the inquiries for information from member libraries. It is with this type of collection in mind that this list has been compiled.

The list contains just over 1,000 titles. These cover most subject areas in which a regional library might be expected to supply information. With a collection of this size most of the inquiries received could be answered without referral to the State Library. This list does not attempt to cover the range of titles required for a research or special library. Reference books for a children's library have not been included unless they have a specific use in the adult reference room.

Some out-of-print titles have been listed as well as currently available titles so that the list may have additional use as a check list in evaluating an established collection.

The list includes many titles which also have a place in a circulating collection. As any reference librarian soon learns, reference assistance can only be given satisfactorily when the total collection of the library is considered as a part of the reference resources. Many titles used in circulation can profitably be made "reference" to supplement the encyclopedias, handbooks, etc., which are fundamental in a reference collection.

It would be misleading to imply that books alone will provide an adequate reference collection. Of great importance are periodicals and serials which are not covered in this compilation. A file of these in some form (bound for recent years, on microfilm or microcard for older files) must be developed by the reference librarian on the basis of experience and the nature of the community served. Although the periodicals are not included in the present list, the many indexes to periodicals will be signposts in the development of an adequate periodical file for reference.

In making the list I have used the collections of the Donnell Reference Library, the Education Library and the Art Library of the Donnell Library Center of The New York Public Library. I have also had the advice of Robert P. Stewart, Public Library Consultant, Library Extension Division, The New York State Library.

No list is perfect or final. If this one is useful to busy librarians, it will serve its purpose.

BASIC LIST OF REFERENCE BOOKS RECOMMENDED FOR CENTRAL LIBRARIES 000-099

Indexes

Indexes of periodicals and/or books, pamphlets, etc., are essential for reference use as well as for book selection and ordering. They are important in a reference center for the identification of material although the center may not own the materials listed. The trade lists of published materials are also essential.

In building a reference collection periodicals which are indexed should be kept as reference if the material indexed is worthwhile. If periodicals are allowed to circulate there will be gaps in the files. Microfilms of older periodicals are often desirable.

REGIONAL REFERENCE COLLECTION

Bibliographies

General bibliographies covering broad subject areas supplement the indexes and trade bibliographies and help the reference librarian in the selection of materials. For convenience, most bibliographies are gathered together in this group. Occasionally a bibliography has been placed in its subject grouping. Frequently a subject bibliography is much broader in scope than its title may indicate.

mainly to plant and animal genetics, the subtitle of the main section being "Better plants and animals". For each of the major crop and live stock groups the book presents a genetic history and discussion of genetic problems. In 1937 it will deal similarly with fruits, vegetables, flowers, and miscellaneous organisms of agricultural importance. Most of the statistical tables formerly published in the Yearbook now appear in a separate volume, Agricultural statistics, 1936 (1Ag84Y 1936 A) q. v. cf. Foreword, Yearbook 1936.

Literature

The collected plays of notable English and American dramatists and the complete poetical works of the best known English and American poets will be valuable in a regional reference collection.

Granger's Index to Poetry may well serve as a buying list for a poetry collection. Libraries which have frequent calls for the identification of poems may arrange the titles in Granger order in a special collection. This makes possible quick referral. It is wise to keep these titles solely for reference use in the library in case they go out of print.
